

Juveniles for Justice
a project of Juvenile Law Center

Have you been involved with the juvenile justice system?

Do you want to make the system better?

Do you want your voice to be heard?

Become a Youth Advocate with Juveniles for Justice!

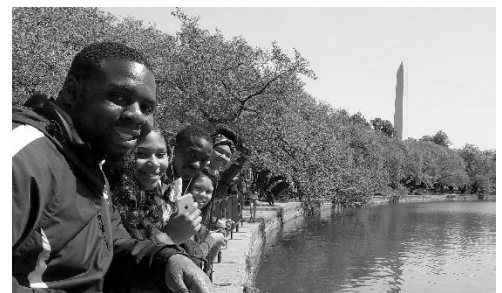

What is Juveniles for Justice (J4J)? J4J is a group of young people who have been involved with the juvenile justice system. J4J works with the Juvenile Law Center to create a campaign that improves the lives of youth who have been in the system. Juvenile Law Center is the oldest non-profit, public interest law firm for children in the country.

What does J4J do? Each year, Youth Advocates learn about the juvenile justice system and, based on this information and their own experiences, create a project to improve the system. As part of their campaign, Youth Advocates present their experiences, opinions, and project to different juvenile justice officials and workers such as judges, lawyers, probation officers, and policymakers to promote their ideas for change.

How often do Youth Advocates meet? Youth Advocates meet for workshops once a week from October to June and as needed. Workshops last 2 hours and first year advocates are paid $10.00 per hour. Youth Advocates are required to attend and participate in each session.

Are Youth Advocates paid? Yes! Youth are paid for each session and receive stipends for additional work. Each year advocates complete a year they receive a raise.

How do I become a Youth Advocate? Fill out the application and drop it off or mail it to Cathy Moffa, or Marcia Hopkins at Juvenile Law Center, 1315 Walnut Street, 4th Floor, Philadelphia, PA 19107. You can also email your application to cmoffa@jlc.org or mhopkins@jlc.org or fax it to 215-625-2808.
