Introduction to the Teen Success Agreement

The Teen Success Agreement is a youth-developed written agreement that outlines the age-appropriate activities, responsibilities and life skills for youth ages 13-21 in the child welfare system, and how the caregiver and agency will support those goals. The plan also outlines the house rules and rewards and consequences for different behaviors. The youth, caregiver and provider agency should meet every six months to discuss, complete and update this form.

Completing the Teen Success Agreement will help:

- Ensure that youth in care have access to the same age-appropriate activities as youth not in care.
- Ensure that youth and caregivers understand the expectations of the household, as well as any rewards or consequences for meeting, or failing to meet, those expectations.
- Ensure that youth in care have the skills they need to be successful when they leave care.
- Encourage open communication between caregivers and youth.

Guidance:

- Timing: The Teen Success Agreement does not need to be completed in a single meeting. However, the team should complete the activities, chores and household rules sections as soon as the youth arrives at a new placement in order to maintain continuity in the youth's life and to avoid misunderstandings.
- The Teen Success Agreement is designed to be individualized. Please make use of the blank spaces provided to address the unique needs of each youth.
- Most sections are organized by age, but, since every youth is different, the team should review all the goals to come up with a plan that makes sense for each youth.

For questions about the Teen Success Agreement please e-mail yfc@jlc.org. More information about Youth Fostering Change is available at www.jlc.org/yfc. You may also call Juvenile Law Center at 215-625-0551.

CAREGIVER EXPECTATIONS

This chart lists a caregiver's responsibilities to the youth in his or her care. If the caregiver is unable to provide any of these responsibilities, he or she should contact the provider agency to identify other resources for these responsibilities.

Caregiver expectation:	Support available to help caregiver(s) meet this expectation:	Youth's actions if caregiver(s) does not meet these expectations:
○ Treat the youth as if he or she were your own. He or she should be included in family outings, activities, meals and vacations.
○ Include the youth in decision-making by asking for his or her thoughts and opinions.
○ Make one-on-one time to get to know the youth.
○ Maintain a positive tone in the house. The attitude of the caregiver influences the tone of the house.
○ Follow through on promises made. This builds trust and respect.
○ Show respect to the youth.
○ Respect the youth's body, person, possessions, bed and personal space.
○ Respect the youth's belongings that were brought into the home and those that were purchased or subsequently obtained for them.
○ Respect the youth's religious and spiritual beliefs.
○ Respect the youth's appropriate relationships with family.
○ Work with the youth and agency in planning for permanency. Permanency planning may include: adoption, reunification with parent, placement with a relative/non-relative (kinship care) or another permanent plan.
○ Ensure that the youth has supervision appropriate to his/her age and/or developmental level.
○ Take immediate action if it is determined that the youth in your care is missing or has runaway.

<input type="radio"/> Encourage the youth to take opportunities that develop interests and skills through participating in school and community activities, such as music, art, sports, special interest clubs and volunteering.
<input type="radio"/> Assist and ensure the youth is given the opportunity to take part in court hearings and other meetings concerning him or her and his or her family.
<input type="radio"/> Provide praise and encouragement and use age-appropriate consequences.
<input type="radio"/> Do not discuss money with the youth without the provider agency present. Money allowance of $_____ must be given to the youth. It cannot be used as a punishment or reward.
<input type="radio"/> Work with the youth and provider agency to prepare for a successful transition into adulthood. Specifically, consult with Independent Living case worker on age-appropriate discipline and independent living skills in the home.

- Find another supportive adult who could help the youth learn the skill
- Find after-school programs where the youth can develop specific skills
- Ensure the youth has access to the supplies or equipment necessary for learning the skill
- Ensure the youth has time built into his or her schedule to learn the skill
- Encourage the youth to develop his or her career interests

*Only if caregiver is the youth's educational decision maker. If not, the caregiver should still be in contact with the educational decision maker.

APPENDIX D: FOR YOUTH - TIPS FOR ADVOCATING FOR YOURSELF

When something is wrong or you want something to change you should:

- Know how to effectively get your message across. To make your message effective, it is not just about what you say, but how you say it. As angry as you might be about your situation, you are more likely to succeed in getting your message across if you are calm and clear when you speak to your caseworker, supervisors and the judge. The calm presentation of your complaint or request will help show your maturity.
- Call your caseworker. Call your caseworker and his/her supervisors. Leave messages if they do not pick up the phone. You should keep a record of the calls you have made.
- Call your lawyer. The job of your lawyer/Child Advocate is to make sure you are safe and that your needs are being met.
- Go up the chain of command. If you make several attempts to call and leave messages for your caseworker and lawyer and no one calls you back, you should go up the chain of command to reach someone.
 - Chain of Command at the child welfare agency: Your social worker → Your social worker's supervisor → Administrator → County agency's head → Regional office of DPW → Office of Children, Youth and Families (state agency)
- Write letters. It is always important to make a record of your complaints or what you want to achieve. Writing letters to your caseworker and GAL shows you are serious and taking time to explain what is important to you. You can also write a letter to the judge and give it to him or her during a hearing. However, you should know that your social worker and parents will also have the right to see it.
- Plan for your court review hearing and ATTEND it. Court is one of the places you can go to make sure you are heard. You can come with a statement or outline to read to the judge if that makes it easier. You can call your lawyer to help you prepare. You should take the opportunity to let the judge know how you feel.
- File a grievance/complaint. You can file a grievance, which is a complaint, with the private provider, the county child welfare agency and the State Office of Children, Youth, and Families. In Philadelphia, youth in DHS care can file a grievance by calling the DHS Commissioner's Action Response Office at 215-683-6000 or 888-808-0066.
